“Do things for people because of who you are, not because of who they are or what they do in return.” — Harold S. Kushner

The world we live in today has seen a lot, from world wars to plagues, but one thing that has remained constant and will continue to be is humanity's resilience and kindness. It's also the spirit of retribution and mutual assistance.

Kindness must be a necessary and universal attribute to make the world a better place. Children who are taught to treat others with respect and kindness in the classroom can apply these lessons outside of the classroom and throughout their life. Kindness spreads quickly in our classrooms, and acts of kindness have far-reaching implications in our wider communities.

What is your feeling about Lalitha's achievement?

I am happy and give the credit to all her teachers, who have given her the opportunities and made her understand the concepts to achieve the success.

What is the role of the school in her upbringing?

The educational environment, best facilities, periodical observations and feedback given from the school's end for a holistic development of my child to achieve her dream of becoming the head girl, fascinates me and my child.

How does your success inspire your child?

As a parent, all I can do is to teach her ethics and morals but the ultimate goal will be achieved by her with the help of teachers

“AN UNDERVALUED QUALITY”

Kindness is a vital human quality when it comes to treating people with respect. This includes being respectful to them, providing emotional support, or raising their morale.

Kindness in its most basic form may go unnoticed or undervalued. Even if there is no payback, the benefits of donating may be substantially larger. People around us can be an inspiration to us. We can't transform the world all at once; we can only affect one individual at a time. Let's begin by looking in the mirror.

OUR STUDENTS, OUR PRIDE

"Why are they doing this activity?" is a common question heard in many schools' classrooms, halls, activity rooms, and playgrounds. and "How important are extracurricular activities?"

Problem-solving, reasoning, critical thinking, creative thinking, communication, and collaboration talents are developed through cocurricular activities, which augment the academic curriculum and aid in learning by doing. Students' emotional growth, social skill development, and general personality development are allaided by participation. As a result, co-curricular activities are quite important similar to curricular and have achieved certificate of merit from the CBSE for the year 2019-2020

FROM THE DESK OF THE SCHOOL HEAD

The attribute of being nice, generous, and caring is defined as kindness. When you notice someone in need, one way to be compassionate is to open your eyes and act. Acts of kindness can include a kind remark, a smile, opening a door, or assisting with a heavy burden. Being kind to oneself is part of being good to others. Do you have a good attitude toward yourself? Do you speak to yourself gently and warmly, and do you take good care of yourself?

Kindness does not necessitate a lot of effort. It all starts with the simple act of not harming people. There are numerous advantages to being kind, including enhanced happiness and a healthy heart. It slows the ageing process and strengthens relationships and connections, all of which benefit your health indirectly.

We encourage and instil the mantra "Be good, Do good, and Feel good" in the hearts and minds of our Orbitians.

We Orbitians feel that kindness makes us the most attractive individuals on the earth. Every month, we discuss several concepts and ensure that our students internalise them and incorporate them into their daily life.

Kindness is one of the virtues we aimed to instil in our students. Most of our students, I've noticed, are courteous to their classmates and teachers, as well as gentle with their work.

In order to grow into happy, confident, all rounder persons, children must be treated with respect when it comes to matters of the heart, and this is something we cherish at Orbit. Apart from this we also encourage them to be kind with others though they are not benefited. "Be compassionate whenever possible," says the Dalai Lama, and our Orbitians will say, "It is always possible!"

Values and good behaviour cannot be taught, but they can be caught. A youngster's activities mimic those of his role models, such as his parents and teachers.

The most important thing we can do is to demonstrate the qualities of kindness, consideration, and helpfulness. One of the finest ways to set a good example for your children is to model something in front of them. We should intentionally model the right eating technique, rather than scold them stating, "Don't chew with your mouth open".

Education teaches us compassion and kindness, connection to others.” – Jill Biden

When kindness is ingrained in your classroom culture, it strengthens peer-to-peer and student-to-teacher bonds. Relationships form, trust develops, and a learning culture blossoms as a natural part of the day. Every month, children are exposed to new themes and ideas, which they adapt and display through their behaviour, actions. As November 2021's theme was kindness, the kids learned that kindness is both infinite and unselfish.

The same practise at school offered them a magnificent sensation of honesty, purity, joy, and integrity, as well as the understanding that it is the key to changing people's perceptions. Finally, I believe that childhood fosters more generosity, and that humanity has a positive impact, albeit slowly.

“No act of kindness, no matter how small, is ever wasted.” Aesop

Teaching children to be kind is one of the kindest things you can do. Not only are you imparting something that makes kids feel good about themselves, but you're planting seeds that make the world a better place. If you want to inculcate good manners in your children and want them to be caring and empathetic towards others, it's important that you start early. As a parent, you can teach your kids to be compassionate. Your little ones observe you, and if you're kind to others, they're going to notice you and learn from you.

When a person, be it a child or an adult, shows a random act of kindness, he/she inspires others to do the same. Fortunately, kindness has a way of spreading. The key is just to get the ball rolling.

“WALL OF FAME”

The globe is brimming with new and exciting talent. Our role as mentors is to locate, nurture, and guide them so that they can develop their abilities and realise their goals later in life.

Master Aswath Warala of Grade I is one of SEEDS URANUS's youthful and exceptional talents, having received the "CHILDREN'S EXCELLENCE AWARD 2021" for painting. We have also been awarded the GOLDEN BOOK AWARD for the year 2021 in recognition of outstanding contribution in Child Education and General Development.

Congratulations!
